FLAVOR AND TENDERNESS

with long holding ability which enables it to remain tender and sweet for many days.

Three years' extensive field trials by Corneli experts and by market growers, shippers, canners and freezers in the United States and Canada have proved the superior quality of this new hybrid. Other outstanding features are resistance to wind and lodging . . . protection of ears by tight husk with good tip coverage . . . adaptability to mechanical or hand harvesting . . . uniform maturity and good holding ability. Prime edible stage is usually reached 83 days after planting or about in season with Golden Cross.

And for an Early Harvest, the Ever Popular®
CORNELI'S GOLD RUSH

This profitable, widely-used early hybrid matures about 10 days before the new "Prosperity," providing an extended harvest period when the two are planted together. Favored by market growers, shippers and canners for its earliness along with full size, uniform ears (8½ inches long, 12 to 14 rows), attractive appearance and exquisite flavor.
